

ELIMINATING EXPLOSIVE HAZARDS WORLDWIDE

At the end of 2017, 61 states and other regions were confirmed as contaminated with landmines and Explosive Remnants of War (ERW). Even decades after conflicts cease, landmines, and ERW present safety and security risks to local populations. Explosive Hazard contamination can delay repatriation of displaced populations by preventing access to food, water, medical and educational facilities, and other critical services. In other regions, explosive hazard contamination can also hamper economic and civil sector development.

CLIENT CHALLENGES

- Evaluating and documenting the extent of ERW contamination and the explosive threat (which areas are safe, which should be cleared prior to use?)
- Maximizing limited search and clearance resources
- Maintaining project schedules and strategic timelines while operating in an explosively contaminated environment

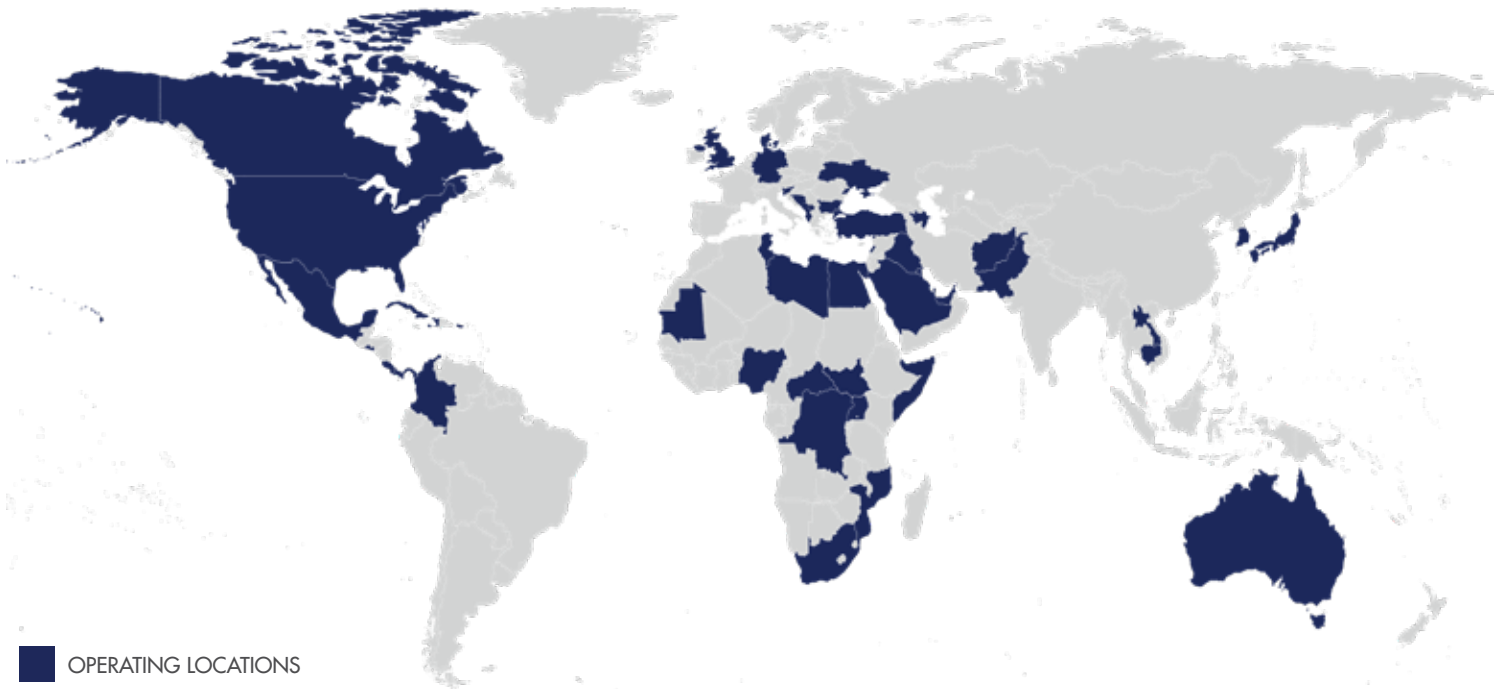

THE JANUS GLOBAL SOLUTION

Utilizing our qualified, expert staff and decades of experience conducting ERW remediation operations worldwide for military, civil and commercial clients, Janus develops a range of ERW remediation solutions to ensure safety and efficacy of projects for aid agencies, developmental organizations, state sponsors and commercial companies.

- Primary-source based threat assessment and mapping
- Survey of key routes and terrain/facilities for ERW
- Design and delivery of ERW risk mitigation and clearance strategies tailored to threat and objectives
- GIS and UAV mapping and documentation to track and report clearance
